CALIFORNIA DOUBTFUL.

The Golden State Not Yet Given Up by the More Sanguine of the Republicans.

Later Returns Prove the State Surely Democratic, but Not Overwhelmingly.

Ohio Still Doubtful, but Will Most Likely Show Democratic Gains.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—California is not yet given up to Cleveland by the Chronicle. It says this morning:—Returns from the interior show that Harrison out of a total of about 176,000 votes has received 81,980, Cleveland 74,535 and Weaver 19,211. This makes the Republican plurality in the interior, so far as heard from, 7445. The total registration through the state reached 324,000, and it is estimated that the vote was fully 290,000, nearly 60,000, of which was in San Francisco, making the interior votes 225,000. This still leaves over 50,000 interior votes to be accounted for. As the precincts still to be heard from are in scattered counties, it is impossible with positiveness to state whether the remaining 50,000 votes will increase Harrison's interior plurality, but there is a probability that they will, in which event Cleveland's San Francisco plurality will be overcome and the state will be Republican. It will perhaps be impossible to tell Cleveland's exact plurality in this city until the official canvass, but the reports last night showed it to be 8275.

The state returns are yet uncompleted but as far as they have been received indications are that California is Democratic by a small plurality, and that the legislature is also Democratic. Cleveland's estimated plurality is two thousand. There has been no change in the situation as to congressmen. Democrats certainly have four and Republicans have Bowers, certainly, and probably Loud and Hobwin, though the two latter are somewhat doubtful. Latest figures give the Democrats the legislature on a joint ballot by eight, as follows: Republicans 56, Democrats 64. Assembly, Democrats 46, Republicans 31, Independents 3.

Talks in Whispers Now.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A change has come over J. J. Maloney, who is one of the sand lots orators of San Francisco. He has a voice like a fog horn and a tongue like a clapper. He was brought here from California by the Republican National committee to go around the city, among the cafes, saloons, horse cars and along the shore telling the people what a great party the Republican party was, and how fond he was of the Irish. His point was to get into an argument where he was likely to gather a large crowd around him. He would then endeavor to disconcert his opponent in the discussion by his talking and excessive volubility. His talk often got into a style called Billingsgate, and he depended upon this to make his opponent retire from the discussion. His loud voice has been heard in many parts of the city. The national committee gave him $250 a week for using it freely. He felt badly enough when he learned that Harrison was defeated, but when the news came that California had gone Democratic he almost lost his voice entirely. Maloney talks in whispers now.

Paying Their Wagers.

BORDENTOWN, N.J., Nov. 11.—A crowd of people gathered at Staples' barber shop yesterday afternoon to witness the shaving of Abraham Garwood's long whiskers, which he had grown 35 years, in payment of an election wager. He said that if Cleveland was elected he would have them shaved off. Wm. Dickel, who bet with John Daubiner on the election and lost, last night in the presence of a large crowd wheeled Daubiner through some of the principal streets of the city. A number of peculiar wagers were made in Mongout county elections and some of them have already been paid. Last night M. Townley Crane, an Asbury Park newspaper correspondent, came to Redbank with a high white hat with a deep black mourning band round it. On the top of the tile was a rooster lying on its side. Mr. Crane was paying one of the 17 bets that he had lost. Dr. D. Bell, of Long Branch, bet on Harrison. Yesterday afternoon he went up Broadway through the city pushing a wheelbarrow, in which was seated Edward Vandyke.

Due to the McKinley Bill.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Committeeman Joseph H. Manley left for Boston this afternoon. Before his departure he said he attributed the Democratic victory to the McKinley tariff law. "The McKinley bill was a mistake," Mr. Manley declared. "Mr. Blaine foresaw the danger and pointed it out. Everybody knows of the fight he made against the McKinley bill in the Senate committee room, and the hat-smashing episode Mr. Blaine endeavored to get the McKinley bill revised. Not succeeding in that he had the reciprocity clause inserted to leaven it. Mr. Blaine knew what the consequences of the McKinley bill would be, but his advice was not heeded. We are now realizing Mr. Blaine's prophecy. The McKinley bill and the Force bill are responsible for the Republican defeat. Mr. Blaine opposed both."

Rejoicing in Chili.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 11.—There is great rejoicing in Chili over the election of Cleveland as president of the United States. Both here and at Santiago flags are flying from the houses of the Americans, and the Chilians are sending congratulatory telegrams to their American friends and expressing the hope that an American gentleman, not a proscribed foreign traitor of the Egan stamp, will be sent as minister to Chili. The evening papers here and at Santiago comment favorably on the result of the election. The papers at Buenos Ayres also rejoice at the election of Cleveland and say that Harrison's defeat means a more conciliatory policy towards the South American republics and a less antagonistic feeling on the part of the United States.

Ohio Doubtful.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 11.—The Commercial Gazette (Republican) this morning says: "Ohio remains this morning in the list of doubtful states, though it must be confessed that as far as the Presidential electors are concerned it has a decided Democratic leaning. Nothing less than the official vote can determine the result." The Enquirer (Democrat) says: "While the Democratic managers believe the state has cast her vote for Cleveland and Stevenson, they still advise all to wait the official count. The figures are very close and the plurality will be but a few hundreds either way. Both sides are eagerly waiting. There must be a 'square deal.'" The Post (Independent) says: "Both parties claim the state, but a revision of figures favors the Democrats more than the Republicans in the state ticket."

The Presidency Cannot be Bought.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 11.—"I can say all I wish to say about it now in one sentence," said ex-Senator Allen Thurman to-day when asked his views of the election result. "It shows that the presidency cannot be bought," and he repeated the last four words with deliberation and emphasis, adding. "If it could Harrison would have been reelected. The overwhelming Democratic victories everywhere are very gratifying to me," he continued, "but I am specially pleased with the excellent showing Ohio has made. We known we have elected all out of the 21 Congressmen, and have probably carried the state. If we have lost, it is by a few hundred votes, and that will be a victory."

Mexico Jubilant.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 11.—News of the election of Cleveland is received by tariff reformers in Mexico with great satisfaction and is certain to strengthen them in their contest against monopolies. Mr. Cleveland is greatly admired in this country as a statesman and as a friend to Mexico. European business men here do not like his election, regarding it as likely to promote the growth of American trade with this country. This is the only element which finds no satisfaction in the triumph of the great tariff reformer in the U. S.

Disgracing the Party.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 11.—An outrage was perpetrated last night at Reading, Ohio, a Democratic stronghold, upon Henry Koester, an active Republican. He was taken by a crowd of noisy Democrats, who carried him about the town on their shoulders, and compelled him to drink frequently. Late at night, when Koester had fallen asleep, he was placed in a coffin, carried home and laid on the steps, where his wife found him almost dead.

The People's Verdict.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Robert Walker, a close personal friend of Governor McKinley, saw the latter on a railway train to-day, and asked him what he thought of the result of the election. The Governor said: "The verdict was rendered by the American people and their will is law."

A Crushing Rebuke.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—There is general satisfaction expressed here over Cleveland's election. It is held to be a sign of the times and a crushing rebuke to high protectionists.

The Vote.

The following table shows the composition of the electoral college as per latest reports. California and Ohio are both very close, and may yet have to be transferred from the Democratic to the Republican column. This would make Cleveland's vote in the college 268 and Harrison's 144, but it would not affect the general result:

English Press Comments.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Daily Chronicle attributes the defeat of the Republican party partially to the "disgraceful tragedy at Homestead," which had no little share in shaping the people's will in the contest. "If the Republicans are dismayed by their defeat," continues the Chronicle, "England may well share their chagrin. We cannot but deny an electoral indication of how McKinley's bill would have given an impetus to the mischievous movement of ignorance and quackery in this country. The Democratic victory does not necessarily, or even probably, mean free trade, but it means approximations in that direction. It means that American foreign trade will expand as it has not expanded heretofore."

The Daily Telegraph says: The United States will now have a Democratic White House and Cabinet, with perhaps a Democratic Senate and House of Representatives, and it may be doubtful if much good will come to outside nations in relaxation of duties. The election of Cleveland will check the establishment of tin plate and other factories, but Mr. Cleveland will not take his seat until the spring, and he is not likely to adopt heroic measures in the direction of free trade. However, the result probably means something, if not much, in the political and fiscal policy of the United States, for Mr. Cleveland is not so nakedly selfish as the Harrisons and Blaines.

The Daily Graphic says: No pleasanter news has been received on this side of the Atlantic for a long time than the announcement of Mr. Cleveland's victory. Of course, his triumph does not complete the downfall of McKinleyism, but it means that the tariff of the United States will be gradually modified, and that protection throughout the world has received a check.

A STUBBORN CONTRACTOR.

Will Allow no Interference With His Contract—The Smallpox Cases.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 11.—Geo. R. Parkin lectured on Imperial Federation last night to a large audience. His presentation of the subject is held to be the best given here, but the arguments were mostly such as would influence people in United Kingdom. Mayor Cope presided.

Wm. Potter, contractor on twelve miles of sewers now in course of construction, refuses to allow other pipe layers to make connections on those parts of the system which are finished, but not taken off his hands, though he is making such himself and charging the householders. This morning he was called in police court to answer a charge of violating the health bylaw.

If no symptoms of smallpox are found among the sixteen suspects from Montreal now in the house in which the case of smallpox occurred a fortnight ago, they will be liberated to-day. Both patients are recovering.

Among the pre election ordinances is the fresh air by-law, which has lain over since February, providing that every household shall have a minimum of three hundred cubic feet of air to each inhabitant. It will be introduced by Ald. Franklin, and will bear most heavily on the Chinese.

To-day's Pacific express is six hours late. The Islander left on time.

WESTMINSTER FALL ASSIZES.

Clumsy Forgery—A Wife-Beater Properly Treated—Bob Kennedy Missing.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 11.—At the assizes to-day J. W. Hunter, of Vancouver, was charged with altering certain papers on March 7th, 1892, for fraudulent purposes. The case was a long one. W. L. Ferrar having given the prisoner a due bill for $118 at Brandon, Man., in 1889, the prisoner altered it to read January 31st, 1892, from 11th, 1889. He was found guilty, the judge saying it was the clumsiest of clumsy forgeries. Hunter was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Cope, of Vancouver, pleaded guilty to assault upon his wife with intent to murder and got five years in the penitentiary.

The charge against J. R. Webster, perjury, was dismissed and the prisoner acquitted, the proper evidence not being put in.

This morning the case against Ah Hoy and Ah Foo for conspiracy to secure possession of Boo Kim, now in the Victoria home, is proceeding.

The juniors beat the Vancouvers at Rugby by a try yesterday.

The Pittendrigh murder inquest was resumed this afternoon, but there is nothing startling yet. Every effort is being made to get the case up for this assize.

William Dixon in trying to stop a runaway team attached to a heavy dray yesterday was thrown under the horses' feet, and only saved from being crushed to death by the pole catching on a post and stopping the horses. Dixon was injured about the shoulders rather seriously.

Bob Kennedy, one of the Kennedy brothers called before the bar of the House last spring, has been missing for two days. He went out hunting on the south arm of the river.

News From Nanaimo.

NANAIMO, Nov. 11.—The ship J. C. Potter is now short of a crew, as all those who manned her were non-union men, and, as usual, the trouble is put down to the Coast Seamen's Union. P. Glynn, the innocent secretary, of course knows nothing about it. It is evident some one is working hard for the union and with great success. A sharp watch is being kept on the Columbia so that the crew will not disappear as suddenly as those of the other vessels.

Great excitement prevailed here over the American presidential election and as the telegraph wires were down no news was obtainable until late in the day. Betting was high in favor of Cleveland, with few takers.

Again there is a break in the water mains leading to Protection Island and Diver Llewellyn has been engaged during the past two days in trying to find the break.

The 32nd anniversary of the establishment of Methodism in Nanaimo will be celebrated in the Wallace street Methodist Church on Sunday by special sermons by Rev. C. Watson of Victoria. On Monday it will be followed by the annual tea meeting in the Sunday school room.

MERCIER'S NEXT MOVE.

Canada Not Affected by the Presidential Election—Failure at Owen Sound.

McKinleyism and the Force Bill Destroyed all Republican Chances.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—Hon. Mr. Taillon, a member of the Quebec Government, says the cabinet is independent on the subject of Mercier's return to political life. He believes it would have the effect of strengthening the administration.

Does Not Affect Canada.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—The Empire says: The result of the election matters little to Canada. There is nothing to show that, so far as fiscal changes affecting Canada are concerned, any radical departure from the political affairs is in serious contemplation.

The World says: Cleveland's administration in its foreign relations will certainly not be so hostile to Great Britain as Mr. Harrison's was under the auspices of Mr. Blaine, and it is possible it may be disposed to establish reciprocal trade relations with Canada beneficial to both countries.

To Bring Immigrants Here.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—A conference of different railway and steamship companies is to be held to-morrow at Montreal to discuss the question of immigration. Burgess, of the Interior Department, left to-day for Montreal to be present at the conference. The idea is to take some joint action to bring immigrants to the country.

THEIR ACCOUNTS WRONG.

Suspension of the Government Accountant and His Assistant.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—The accountant and assistant accountant of the House of Commons were both suspended today. Hon. Peter White, speaker of the Commons, who has been here since Wednesday, has taken this course owing to some irregularities which have been discovered in the accounts by the Auditor-General. The exact nature of the alleged irregularities have not been fully investigated, but it is only fair to the officials concerned to say that the amount involved is very small, and that no charge of fraud has been made.

CANADIAN NOTES.

News by Mail and Wire from all Parts of the Dominion.

Mining is booming in Marmora. A thirty ton per day crusher is being put in at the Dingham gold mine.

The Labrador cod fishery is a fair average one, but nothing more. It is at least 20 per cent. behind that of last year, which was, however, unusually good.

The mica market in the Ottawa district still remains abnormally dull with slow sales, low prices and few shipments. Good quality can now be had as low as $125 to $200 per ton according to size.

J. W. Bain, M.P. for Soulanges, has thrown up the sponge, having made a declaration admitting that fraudulent practices sufficient to annul his election were committed by his agents, without his knowledge and consent.

The Toronto authorities have come to an agreement with the street railway management as to iron poles for the trolley wires. They will be used on all the leading streets now and will be substituted by degrees for wooden ones in other streets hereafter. A two thirds' majority of the council so order.

Four American sportsmen, named Call, Kinsey, Brown and Kelly, from Cleveland, Ohio, were fined at Blenheim for shooting without a license. As there appears to be certain mitigating circumstances in the case the magistrate let them off on the payment of $25 each for a license and the costs incurred

Donald McLean, an old resident of Erin township, dropped dead while on the road near his own home. Mr. McLean had been attending an auction sale and started for home. A few hours afterwards his cousin, who also has a farm near by, found Donald lying dead on the road. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Nova Scotia has a new mining town which is going ahead at a rapid rate. Not long ago a farmer who owned a large farm some nine or ten miles from Pictou sold his property for $2100. Since the opening up of the iron works at this place, Ferrona, some 120 houses have been put up for the miners. Shops are going up on all hands, and in the course of a short time Ferrona will be a town of considerable importance.

The funeral of Mrs. Julianne Parks, of Enterprize, near Kingston, surprised the villagers. She did not believe in display, and, though wealthy, ordered that the casket be plain and cheap and brown in color, no mourning to be worn, only brown colors, no badges, no sermon, only singing and prayer at the house. The great expense of funerals to her was wasteful, and the money could be better used in feeding the poor.

In the Exchequer Court at Quebec Judge Burbidge rendered judgment in the landslide case, non-suiting the city corporation, which was claiming from the Ottawa Government $56,000 for damages to the Champlain street railway by the avalanche. His honor did so on the ground that there was no proof of any negligence on the part of any officer or servant of Her Majesty to show responsibility for the disaster. The other law points raised are to be left to the decision of the Supreme Court. Judge Burbidge's ruling also practically disposes of the cases of the private claimants.

Mr. Adams, superintendent of works at the Kingston penitentiary, is preparing plans for the proposed new convict insane asylum to be erected north of the warden's residence. Mr. Adams is also preparing the plans for a new building to be erected on the vacant ground east of the penitentiary to be utilized solely for female convicts. There are about 28 female convicts in the whole Dominion at the present time, a very creditable showing, but it is far cheaper to bring them from distant points in Canada to one central place than to maintain separate staffs at different points. As soon as the plans have been approved of by the Minister of Justice tenders will be called for.

Chicago's Unhealthy Climate.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—The rumor in army circles that General Miles has asked the war department to remove him from Chicago and let him exchange places with General Howard, because of the criticisms by the press of Chicago on his management of the military parades in connection with the ball and dedicatory ceremonies of the World's Fair, is denied by the Indian fighter. "I have made no application to the department to be removed from Chicago" said the general. "Rumors are easily started, and they grow rapidly on their travels. I have been severely criticized and Chicago has proved to be an unhealthy place for Major-Generals," continued General Miles significantly; then after waiting a moment to give the innuendos time to take effect, he went on. "Gen. Sheridan, you know, contracted here the disease which eventually ended his life. Then there were Gen. Terry and Gen. Crook, who both died while in command of a division in this city.

Regarding Circulars.

As the conditions under which printed circulars may be sent by post within the Dominion are not generally known, the Postmaster-General has furnished the following:—The only written additions which may be made to a printed circular posted at the one cent rate are the name or addresses of the addressee, the name of the sender and the date of the circular itself. The date of some event referred to in the date of the circular itself, such as that of a meeting, is not permissible. Circulars containing any writing other than the exceptions quoted are liable to letter rate.

American Aristocracy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—High society, and especially the representatives of the ancient and feudal families, turned out in force yesterday at the Episcopal church of St. Thomas to witness the nuptials of Miss Coralie Livingstone Gardner to Mr. Alexander Coxe, a young Englishman belonging to a prominent family and the possessor of a good-sized fortune. The wedding was rendered noteworthy from the fact that the bride is the eldest daughter of Col J. Lyon Gardner, the 12th Lord of the Manor of Gardner's Island, which was also the first English settlement in New York State and has been in the possession of the family since 1639. She is also descended from the Lords of the Manor of Livingstone and the Hon. Rip Van Dan, the celebrated colonial governor, besides being connected with the Van Rensellaers, Van Cortlands, Winthrops and Griswolds. The wedding was celebrated after the high English style.

The Chicago Anarchists.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—This is a day of sad recollections among the members of the blood and dynamite group of the city. It is the fifth anniversary of the execution of the brutal murderers of the gallant Chicago policemen by means of dynamite, Spies, Parsons, Engel and Fischer, the leaders of the anarchist agitation which culminated in the terrible Haymarket riot and its loss of life. There will be gatherings in memorial to-night in this city, New York, Detroit and in many cities abroad of the misguided sympathisers of the desperate outlaws and criminals. The respectable portion of the community remember with thankfulness and satisfaction the firm and verile administration of justice which so promptly consigned the bloodthirsty ruffians to the scaffold, too honorable a death for such things.

Insects From the Clouds.

GUADALAXARA, Mexico, Nov. 11.—A correspondent at Manzanita says that the inhabitants of a small place known as Lapuerta Zapatero, between Manzanita and Zapatero, were thrown into the utmost consternation recently by the appearance of a heavy lowering cloud, which hung over their little village. Their terror increased when it burst and amid torrents of rain there fell myriads of little insects, such as had never been seen in that country. Special religious services were held in all the churches, and all the inhabitants flocked together into what they considered their only place of safety. It was afterwards learned that the same phenomenon had been repeated two days later at the same place, and for a distance of three leagues round about. The people are becoming accustomed to the curious occurrence.

The Monetary Conference

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Senator Allison, of Iowa, Congressman Creary, of Kentucky, and Hon. W. Andrews, three of the American delegates to the International Monetary Congress to be held at Brussels two weeks hence, will have a conference this afternoon with President Harrison and Secretary of the Treasury Foster concerning their duties and powers before the congress. They will sail for Europe on Saturday. Arrangements have been made by which stenographic reports of the proceedings of the conference will be made by Eugene Davis, clerk of the Senate Committee on Contingent Expenses, while Prof. Roland P. Faulkner, of the University of Pennsylvania, will act as secretary to the American commissioners.

Accident to Austrian Royalty.

VIENNA, Nov. 11.—The Archduke Charles Louis, heir apparent to the throne, and the Archduchess are still suffering from the effect of their recent accident by being precipitated into a ditch during a heavy fog. The supposed contusion that the Archduchess sustained on both legs has proven to indicate several fractures of the small bones, and she will necessarily be confined to her room for some weeks to come. The driver of the carriage, who was very badly injured, and who was at first charged with gross negligence, has been completely exonerated after a rigid investigation.

A High Life Marriage

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The marriage of Lady Margaret Alice Seymour, daughter of the Marquis and Marchioness of Hertford, of the White Star Steamship Line, and Mr. James Ismay was solemnized this morning in the presence of several hundred representatives of the nobility. The groom is a brother of J. Bruce Ismay, who some two years ago married Miss Florence Schieffelin, at that time one of the reigning belles of New York City. The new bride is twenty-three years of age.

Half a Million in Charity.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The will of the late George Fowler, of Liverpool and Kansas City, and who left twenty-five thousand dollars each to the Salvation Army and the African mission conducted by Bishop William Taylor of the Methodist Church of the United States, has been filed at Doctors Commons. Although the will disposes of upwards of half a million dollars in charity it will not be contested by the heirs.

Vile Communications.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—No clue has so far been obtained to the identity of the individual or individuals who for some time past have been sending letters with immoral designs in view to immigrants delayed at the landing bureau on Ellis Island. The society for the prevention of vice has taken up the matter, and Detective Groden, who is employed to guard the immigrants, is making a determined effort to trace the vile communications to their source.

UNPLEASANT MEMORIES.

A French Exhibit Commissioner to Whom Americans Object.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The announcement that M. Du Sommerard, who was one of the Commissaires Generaux of the French Department of the Centennial of 1876, and Captain Anfrye, who was the deputy commissioner for the French Republic to that exposition, will probably be identified with the French Department of the World's Columbian Exposition, has served to call to mind an episode connected with their official relations to this country at that time, and which created an international sensation. It was in August, 1876, that a letter was published in a large number of German newspapers, which, it was asserted, had been written by M. Du Sommerard to a friend in Germany.

In the letter it was declared that a slight fire, which had occurred a short time before, had broken out in the main building of the Centennial, was an act of incendiarism on the part of the Americans, who had set fire to the building containing the French packing cases with the hope of destroying the French merchandise; that the attendants were thieves without exception, who stole openly from the French Department; and that not only did the judges (i. e. magistrates) palliate these acts, but they actually participated in and sometimes promoted the robberies referred to. Not content with these assertions the letter also made a vile attack upon the manners and virtue of American women. Immediately upon its publication in Germany the lette was telegraphed to the Paris Figaro, and thence cabled across the Atlantic. Its publication in the newspapers of this country created a sensation, followed by a storm of indignation.

The late Hon. Elihu H. Washburn, who was at that time Minister to France, was prompt to act. After apprising the State Department at Washington of the statements contained in the letter, he penned a vigorous remonstrance to Marshal McMahon, who was at that time President of the French Republic.

In the meantime both the Comte de Brisdach and Capt Anfrye, the French Commissioners at Philadelphia, had hastened to deny that any charges had been contained in their official reports to the Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, who was the president of the French commission, upon which Du Sommerard could have based his statements, although the latter admitted that he had frequently been compelled to complain of the insulting action of the Centennial guards, of the discourteous conduct towards French exhibitors of numerous robberies from the French Department. He likewise admitted that he had been compelled to call upon the French government for ten members of the Paris provincial police to do guard duty in the French section. Du Sommerard, on his part said that the letter had been greatly magnified, but an apology for his action was made by the French government, and the sensation finally subsided. For the remainder of the period during which the Centennial remained open, however the relations between the American and French commissions, so far as the boundaries of Fairmount Park were concerned, were decidedly frigid.

Now that it is reported that the Frenchman in question will be identified with the French department at the World's Fair the episode has been recalled, and the feeling is strongly expressed in commercial and other circles having relations with the sister republic that it would not be good policy to let any of those concerned in the affair in question have control of the French exhibit.

Shakespeare Up to Date.

On Monday evening, the 14th instant, at the Imperial Opera House, Mr. Marmaduke Wood, the Shakespearean reader and reciter, assisted by Mr. Coburn Thompson and other gentlemen, will give an attractive entertainment, reading from Hamlet and authors of note. Mr. Wood has made a study of Shakespeare and knows him quite well now. He reads with smoothness and very fine action. Everyone who realizes what a treat Shakespeare is when "done up" in the real Cockney accent—the way Shakespeare liked it himself—will be present. The entertainment will be conducted on strictly respectable lines, and it is promised that everyone who attends will get full value for his money.

Ten Entries.

The gentlemen interested in the ploughing match to be held at the Cloverdale farm to-morrow met at the Oriental Hotel last evening and discussed general matters relating to the match. It was decided to hold a banquet at the Oriental Hotel on Saturday evening. The entries for the free-for-all match are: A. Munro, Alex. Rose, Geo. B. McRae, W. Snider, Archie Chapman, James Todd, James Irving, W. Hutcheson, P. Roach and W. Hill. The entries for the amateur match must be in by 7 o'clock this evening.

Married in St. John's Church.

Mortimer James Appleby and Miss Matilda Mesher, fourth daughter of Mr. Geo. Mesher, were married in St. John's church Wednesday evening, Rev. Canon Paddon tied the knot. The bride was attired in ivory silk, a la princesse, and draped with Bavarian point. Misses Alice and Lizzie Mesher acted as bridesmaids and Master Bertie Perkins was train bearer. Supper was served at the residence of the bride's father, 53 Second street. Many handsome presents were received by the happy couple.

Professional Prevaricators.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, which, with the aid of its notorious correspondents, manages pretty well to misrepresent British Columbia and Victoria in particular, yesterday printed a falsehood "on its own hook." It stated that smallpox was always prevalent in Victoria, and that there were now more cases in Victoria than in Seattle. This everybody knows to be a plain, direct lie without any qualifying circumstances.

Moral Reform Association.

The Moral Reform Association meets this evening at the usual hour and place. The members are as dumb as ever when asked what is done at the meetings. At one meeting it is known that some mention was made of possible municipal candidates, but nothing has so far been done to choose candidates for the January elections.

Police Court Jottings.

In the police court this morning Michael Moore was "sent up" for two months for vagrancy. Philip Chalk again graced the court by his presence. The old, old charge, drunk. Three months. Thos. Mathewson, drunk. First offense. Discharged.

PLUMPER'S PASS PIRATES.

Men in Boats From the South Stealing Everything They Can.

PLUMPER'S PASS, Nov. 9.—Latest news of the chase of the supposed boat thief is that the steamer Eliza, being unable to overtake the fugitive in the gulf, gave up the chase and proceeded on her way to Tumbo Island, when the man in the boat seeing that he was no longer followed, about ship and made for the island shore, passing into Plumper Sound through Boat Pass. The constables, with the help of another man, making three altogether, got the East Point lighthouse boat and followed the man into Plumper Sound, coming up with him at the entrance of Boat Bay, Saturna Island, where he was baling his boat out, but on seeing the constables' boat he went ashore on a small island taking his rifle with him. The constables went within thirty feet of him and had a talk with him, but not being sure if it was the stolen boat or not, they concluded to let him alone. Another party started out, but the bird had fled and no doubt is running himself beneath the stars and stripes. Things are in a very unsatisfactory state here just now owing to the various robberies that have been committed of late. Yesterday Mr. Collinson discovered that thieves had entered an unoccupied house of his and carried off a suit of sloop sails and other things to the value of over $60. This is the second visitation Mr. Collinson has had in a few weeks, losing over $100 altogether. Previous to this they had taken a boat from Mr. Collinson worth $80, another boat from Mr. W. M. Robson, another from Messrs. Hooson, and also one each from Mr. Mawdsley and Mr. Kempe, afterwards stealing a shotgun from Mr. Kempe; then killing a cow for Mr. Hamilton. There appears to be no likelihood of a stop in the business until some of them get taken redhanded, when a short paragraph in the Victoria papers will announce the funeral services. All these outrages appear to be committed by men roving about in boats; men that are entire strangers to us, and we have no power to drive them back to the south, where they belong, although we well know that they have no legitimate business coming among the islands here. The question to-day here is: "Who will be the next victim?"

CORRESPONDENT TIMES.

Visited the Viceroy.

Captain Tashiro and the officers of the Japanese training ship Kongo lunched at the Driard yesterday. They visited Lieut.-Governor Dewdney later in the afternoon.

To-morrow afternoon the officers of the Kongo will be entertained at the Driard by Admiral Hotham.

Tramway Company's Meeting.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Electric Tramway Company is called for to-morrow evening to consider a proposition to issue additional stock and to arrange for further development and extension of the business. As the objects are of great importance to the future of the company and the city, there will probably be a large attendance.

Transfer of the Marvin.

The transfer of the sealing schooner E. B. Marvin to her new owner is being arranged to-day. It requires a large amount of work to prepare the papers.

Threatening Outlook in Samoa

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The latest accounts from Samoa disclose great dissatisfaction among the natives over the method pursued by the commissioner appointed by the three foreign powers, the United States, Great Britain and Germany, in the application of funds received for taxes. The complaint is made that the tax fund is consumed in the payment of high salaries to the commission and his appointees, and that they get no return in the way of improvements for the heavy assessments made upon them. Consequently affairs in the Samoan group are unsatisfactory and threatening for many reasons. An order for the cruiser Alliance, now at Honolulu, to go to Samoa will be sent by the mail steamer which leaves San Francisco to-morrow. It is now the intention to send another vessel to Honolulu to relieve the Alliance. The Boston is now there and will be kept in those waters. The Mohican and Ranger will be kept in readiness at San Francisco for service in Honolulu. It is apparent that the Boston requires reinforcements.

She Would Not Disappoint Her Friends.

Last month one of Toronto's most promising amateur singers promised to sing at a church concert.

A few days before the concert she caught a cold, which resulted in a very sore throat and nasty cough. A few friends advised her to notify the managing committee of the concert that she would be unable to appear. Her answer was as follows:—

"My name appears on the programme, and I am determined that my friends and the public will not be disappointed. I have found a cure for my cough and sore throat, and feel that I will be quite prepared for the concert night."

The young lady referred to had been accustomed to use Harvard Bronchial Syrup for all affections arising from sudden colds. She knew the value of the wonderful remedy, and felt certain that her cure would be speedy and effective.

Our best professional and amateur vocalists now use Harvard Bronchial Syrup when affected with coughs, colds and sore throat, as it quickly removes every difficulty, and greatly strengthens the voice. It is an invaluable remedy for every singer in Canada.

Every medical practitioner attending or visiting any person who is suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO.

It is pleasing to see some people of Eastern Canada taking a somewhat philosophical view of Great Britain's action in scheduling Canadian cattle. They have come to the conclusion that the embargo will not be an "unmixed evil," since the Canadian animals will now have to be fattened at home for the British market instead of being sent over in the shape of "stockers" to be converted into beef by the English and Scottish farmers. Some will not even admit that the change will prove an evil at all, but hold that it will be an unmixed good for Canada. The London Free Press, for instance, puts it in this way:—"The shipping of grassers or stockers from Canada to Scotland and England at the best is only poor economy, and finally is a losing game to the Canadian farmer in more ways than one. We lose the benefit to be derived from feeding this stock and consuming our coarser grains, hay and by-products, and hence deplete the country of so much fertility which we can ill afford to lose. Then, again, these same stockers are fed in Scotland and England on cheap American corn, and become strong rivals in the British market to our own fat stock. If scheduling Ontario stocks will stop this depletion it has accomplished a good work in this sense." The Free Press seems to have been almost alone in speaking thus in anticipation of the scheduling act; generally the prospect of an embargo was received with alarm. Most of those people who offered observations changed their tone only when the embargo had become an accomplished fact, but, as we have said, it is satisfactory to see them now taking the matter so philosophically. There is one drawback to the consolation, in that the eastern farmers themselves have not expressed themselves as pleased by the change, and they are the people chiefly interested. Perhaps they are chuckling in a quiet way over being compelled to make their own stockers fit for market and thus increase their own gains. We have a strong suspicion, however, that they are not all charmed over the advent of this "un-mixed evil." It is not easy for the farmer to provide all at once for a change of method in any department of his work. In time he may be able to take advantage of the wise instruction he is receiving as to the benefit of fattening his own cattle instead of selling them to be fattened in Britain, but for a year or two at least he will be "stumped" by the change in the situation. And just at this time the Ontario and Quebec farmers are not in a position to bear up well under even a temporary reverse. As for the Manitoba and Northwest farmers and ranchers, the following paragraph from an exchange will serve to illustrate their interest in the subject:—"Forty cars of cattle passed through Winnipeg last Friday morning for the east, for shipment to the old country. Thirty cars were from the Calgary district and the balance from the M. & N.W. Railway." The sudden checking of such an outflow of cattle and the consequent inflow of money must necessarily cause hardship at least for the time being. Whatever may be said of the wisdom of exporting cattle fat instead of lean, the change must result immediately in a setback for many Canadian farmers, who had already enough crosses to bear.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A large number of citizens were disqualified last year as municipal voters because they neglected to pay their taxes or trade license fees before the date fixed by law (the first Monday in December.) Taxes on real estate, trade licenses and the school tax of $3 must be paid before that date to entitle a citizen to a vote for Mayor, aldermen, or on loan by-laws. Householders are required to register at the City Hall before the date named to entitle them to vote at the civic election.

The Toronto World says:—"The prospects of such a revolution taking place in England as a return to protection are not very hopeful. A serious agitation in favor of protection can hardly be said to have begun in England. Sporadic outbreaks have occurred in certain reviews, a few newspapers, a single speech by a distinguished statesman, and here and there on public platforms. But no anti-free trade epidemic prevails in the Old Land in any quarter." Notwithstanding all this, the World holds on to a hope that Britain will, "in time," put a preferential duty on foreign wheat in favor of the colonial product. This looks like hoping against hope. And if the Canadian farmer is in need of such relief as the preferential duty would give him, what is he to do while the Briton is undergoing the process of conversion?

The Ottawa correspondent of the Empire says that recently the attention of the Dominion Government was drawn to the offer of a pill company which has been doing business in Toronto for some time. Mr. W. F. Pool, of Helena, Monta, noticed the company's advertisement in a United States newspaper, and had the curiosity to invest 35 cents in a box of pills, in the hope that his remittance might be the first of five to reach the company on a certain day, by which he would be entitled to one of five prizes. In writing to the Department of Justice he says that the pills for which he remitted the money did not reach him, but instead he received a circular letter with a demand for a further pecuniary consideration, whereupon a silver watch and a dozen boxes of pills would be sent him. This "fake prize" scheme has become a favorite method with men who make their own living out of the gullibility of others. It is prevalent in England, where Mr. Labouchere has been making deadly war upon it, and seems to be making headway in Canada. The outsider has as little chance of making money out of one of these "fakes" as he has of beating the gambler at his own game. It is profitable to leave them alone.

Canadians will appreciate this paragraph from the Australian edition of the Review of Reviews:—"The state railways of Australia, by the huge amount of capital they employ, and the opportunities for favoritism they afford, might easily become the nurseries of corruption; but, as the Schey Commission proves, their administration is found, under the most searching investigation, to be absolutely honest, and honesty is a note of public life in the colonies everywhere. Australian parliaments are not always wise; they are not often far sighted—the colonial politician is indeed an obstinate and hopeless "opportunist"—but they are always clean! Nothing would so soon wreck a cabinet or party as a well-grounded suspicion of playing false with public funds." Compare the administration of the Conservative Government of the Intercolonial, and of the Canadian Pacific when it was a government railway with the "absolutely honest" management of the Australian roads, and we shall appear at a decided disadvantage. Compare also the Australian punishment of politicians who play false with the public funds with our habit of doing them honor. The conclusion must be that Australian political morality is far in advance of Canadian.

Watt and the Steamboat.

James Watt, who did so much to make the steam engine of practical use, did not, so far as can be learned, take any deep interest in the subject of steam navigation. Yet incidentally he did a good deal to advance it. In his old age he paid a visit to his native town of Greenock.

On August 15, 1812, a small steamboat had begun making regular trips between that place and Glasgow, and gradually the service was extended to other points, several boats being put into commission. The old engineer went on one of the new vessels to Rothesay and back, the trip then occupying the whole day. Mr. Williamson, in his "Memories of James Watt," tells this story of the voyage:

"Mr. Watt entered into conversation with the engineer of the boat, pointing out to him the method of backing the engine.

"With a foot rule he demonstrated to him what he meant. Not succeeding, however, he at last, under the influence of the ruling passion, threw off his overcoat, and putting his hand to the engine himself, showed the practical application of his lecture. Previous to this the back stroke of the steamboat engine was either unknown or not generally acted on. The practice was to stop the engine entirely a considerable time before the vessel reached the point of mooring, in order to allow the gradual and natural diminution of her speed."—Chicago News.

VICTORIOUS GAMBLERS.

Chinese Lottery Men Win Their Case by a Narrow Margin.

The Chinese have again come out on the top of the heap. Magistrate Macrae this morning gave judgment in the Celestial lottery cases. The lottery cases of Ah Hoo and Tew Land had not been legally proved.

The court room was fairly well filled with Celestials anxious to learn the outcome. Magistrate Macrae, in delivering judgment, said Constable Palmer had not been allowed to mark the piece of paper in the front store; that he had been told that the drawing would take place at 5:30 the same evening bore a signification, and it was not plausible to think that Constable Palmer had paid 25 cents to Tew Land for a piece of paper. There was evidently more. But it was his duty as presiding magistrate to have before him absolutely incontestable legal proof. That he had not. The police had failed to produce the connecting link in the chain of evidence. He was morally certain of the guilt of Tew Land and Ah Soo, but it was legal proof alone that would convict. If the police had had a little more evidence, the conviction would have been accomplished. The statutes aimed at suppressing gambling and illegal speculation, but the cases must be proved according to law. The cases against Ah Hoo and Tew Land were then dismissed. The faces of the Chinamen beamed radiantly, and one of their number offered the Celestial hand to Lawyer Mills. Mr. Mills was too absorbed in legal tactics to notice the Celestial. He hastily arose from his seat and spoke:

"I suppose my friend the superintendent of police will let these cases decide the others. That was understood between us, was it not, Mr. Sheppard?"

"Not much. I'll go on with the rest."

The superintendent appeared displeased at the turn of affairs.

Lawyer Mills again asked Chief Sheppard to drop the other cases. Mr. Mills did not think any further evidence was forthcoming. He had advised his clients to discontinue the practice of gambling and the sale of lottery tickets. He would guarantee the appearance of the other Celestial in case Chief Sheppard worked up any further evidence. Chief Sheppard was obdurate. He wanted to go on with the other cases, and go on at once.

Lawyer mills saw that coaxing was "no go." He then doubled upon a technical point. He demanded that the other cases be dismissed upon the ground that they were not argued within eight days after being called in court, and that they were never remanded.

Chief Sheppard rose from a reclining position in his official seat. He thrust his hands into his pockets, looked at Lawyer Mills and looked at Magistrate Macrae. "Your Honor, these were adjourned from time to time."

Magistrate Macrae turned up the court book. The words "et al" were found after the cases of Ah Hoo and Tew Land.

Chief Sheppard held the trump card this time.

"Well, when can yo go on with the other cases, Chief?" The enquiry was by the court.

"At once."

"I want a remand. Thursday next will do." Lawyer Mills was the speaker.

"I grant you a remand, Mr. Mills."

And the court fixed Thursday next as the date for the hearing of the lottery cases against Gum Gee, Ah Tai, Lee Wee, Chin Fook and Tom Gow. The case against Chin Fook was formally called and the court adjourned.

Chinese missionary J. T. Coleman had been seated in the court during the delivery of judgment. He heard the remarks of Lawyer Mills that the Celestials had been advised and probably would discontinue the naughty practices of gambling and selling lottery tickets. He once remarked, in an undertone, that there were more Chinese gambling dens than ever. After the court adjourned Mr. Coleman approached Chief Sheppard.

"There are over 200 fan tan tables in the city. It is all bosh about them being closed down. They will become worse than before. The lottery tickets are sold just the same."

Chief Sheppard replied that since Mr. Coleman knew all about the Chinese he should lay information.

"It is not my business, sir."

This was the rejoinder of Mr. Coleman, and he walked from the court room.

INTESTATE ESTATES.

TO THE EDITOR:—Administrator's notices are continually appearing with reference to the estates of persons who have neglected to make a will for the disposal of their effects, and have consequently imposed that responsibility upon the government. Now when an executor has been appointed, all he has to do is to allot the property as instructed to the legatees, but when a government becomes the executor of a person dying intestate, the property of the estate comes into their hands without any such information; that necessarily brings with it increased responsibility, and makes it a point of honor to find out if possible the relations entitled to receive it. Some of our colonial governments are so strongly impressed with this duty, as to cause the amounts of such intestate persons to be placed in the savings bank, bearing interest and annually to advertise names of persons dying intestate, where supposed from, amounts in hand, etc. As to what our provincial government does in such cases, made and provided, there prevails much ignorance, and I submit it is high time more publicity should be given of what is done with the properties of those who have died intestate. ## THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The City's Health Affairs Considered by the Board Yesterday Afternoon.

Dr. Richardson's Report on the Smith Case—Dr. Milne's Resignation.

At a meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday afternoon several matters of importance were dealt with.

A recommendation was made that a woman who had failed to report that her child had smallpox until she herself had taken the disease, should be prosecuted, was not acted upon, the members of the board being of opinion that the woman had suffered enough.

Compulsory vaccination received its share of discussion. The members of the board, altogether recognizing the benefits to be derived from compulsory vaccination, thought it would be unwise to try to enforce it.

As Dr. Milne insisted upon his resignation being accepted, it was decided to appoint his successor. The aldermen will canvass the medical men to ascertain their views as to the best man for the position.

The Mayor reported that he had urged the Dominion quarantine office to make a more careful examination of steamers arriving from the Sound.

One of the aldermen mentioned the fact that a woman whose husband had died of smallpox near Duncan's station had been sent to the city, and was now being taken care of at the city's suspect station.

A number of claims for property destroyed by the city's sanitary officer during the smallpox epidemic were received and laid on the table.

The following letter from Dr. J. C. Davie was read, also one from Dr. Richardson to Dr. Davie:—

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 27th, 1892.

To Mayor Beaven and Municipal Council, Victoria:—

SIRS—I beg leave to enclose the following report, handed to me by Dr. Richardson, of the Jubilee Hospital.

It will be seen by the report above referred to that there has been gross negligence and bungling concerning these cases, and if a similar line of action is pursued, the danger to the citizens of Victoria from the spread of smallpox will be beyond calculation

I understand, in a conversation with Dr. Milne, that your body will elect a new health officer within a few days, and I suggest to you the advisability of procuring a thoroughly competent and energetic man to fill this position. I shall be happy to lend you any assistance I can in making a selection for that office. I have the honor to be, etc.,

J. C. DAVIE,
Provincial Health Officer.

Oct. 24th, 1892.

Dr. Davie, Provincial Health Officer, Victoria:

DEAR SIR,—The information given to me by Mr. Smith concerning his child is as follows:—

It was taken ill on Oct. 3rd, and died on Oct. 11th. It was attended by Dr. E. Hall and his assistant and Dr. Watt.

Mr. Smith buried his child in his plot in the cemetery.

He had four other children, three of whom lived at home with him and had been successfully vaccinated. The child who died had not been vaccinated. He himself had been successfully vaccinated about ten years ago. His wife had not been successfully vaccinated since infancy.

Mrs. Smith's rash came out on the night of Oct. 21st. She was admitted to quarantine on Oct. 23rd.

He stated to me that he took no precautions against any contagion arising from his child's illness, as he was not aware that it had died of any infectious disease.

His children returned to school in a few days. He and his wife boarded at a friend's house, named John Rosson, 198 Cook street, for a day or two before returning to the house after the child died.

He bought a coffin from Mr. Storey, took it home, hired a hack from Courtenay's stables (Pandora street), and with the assistance of two friends, Mr. John Rossou and Mr. Robelee, 16 Caledonia avenue, buried his child himself.

He registered the child's death after reporting it to Dr. Watt, and getting a certificate of death from Dr. E. Hall.

He did not disinfect any of the child's clothing, but flung it out in his yard over night, and next day sent it to a Chinese laundry on Pandora street, just below Quadra.

Mrs. Smith's rash is vesicating and will be confluent, covering every portion of her body.

I am, yours faithfully,
W. A. RICHARDSON, M.B.,
Quarantine Officer.

Beauty and the Beast.

Last evening was a pleasant one for the large audience that attended the concert given in the St. John's church Sunday school room. Mrs. J. H. Todd, who undertook the management of the concert, had prepared a splendid programme, which passed off without a hitch. The principal part was the presentation of the story of "Beauty and the Beast." The young ladies and gentlemen took their parts very creditably. The concert will be repeated to-morrow afternoon.

The Ship Bankburn.

The ship Bankburn, Captain Davies, has been libelled in $4000. She had just shipped a crew and was ready to sail for Valparaiso when the marshal boarded her with the legal papers. It is likely that all the seamen belonging to her and now in Victoria will have to go to the American side to give evidence in the district court as to the treatment they received on the voyage hither. The ship has not yet paid her pilotage dues here and Mr. Geo. A. Perrin has gone to Port Townsend to look after the claims of the collector and the pilots.

Speedy Trials' Court.

The case of Ah Hing, charged with unlawfully and maliciously wounding a brother Celestial by the name of Ah Wee at the Delmonico Hotel, on Sept. 17, was heard to-day before Hon. Mr. Justice Crease, Mr. Eberts appearing for the Crown and Mr. Hall for the defence. The trial lasted for over five hours and resulted in the prisoner being sentenced to two years' imprisonment. His Lordship stated that the charge had been clearly proved and that the court had always set its face against anyone who used a knife or any other unlawful weapon against his fellow man. The court might have imposed the full penalty of three years, but as the wound was not, according to the evidence of the medical men, dangerous or in a dangerous place, the term of imprisonment was reduced by one year.

JAPAN SEAL FISHERIES.

She Will Protect Them Next Year if Necessary.

T. Horu, of Tokio, Japan, is registered at the Driard. Mr. Horu is a naval officer of the Japanese gunboat Kongo, now at Esquimalt. Mr. Horu was asked what would be the policy of the Japanese Government regarding sealing in Japanese waters next year. He replied:

"Being in the government service it is not for me to state anything one way or the other. This much I will tell you, that the prevailing opinion is that Japan will protect her seal fisheries. The Japanese Government will make good exhibits at the World's Fair, and I think that a few years hence will see the development of manufacturies in Japan on a large scale.

WITH THEIR NEW CREWS.

The Daphne And Nymphe Back at Esquimalt—A Serious Accident

Her Majesty's ships Daphne and Nymphe returned yesterday afternoon from Vancouver with their new crews which arrived from the east over the C.P.R. The men who were left in charge of the ships handed them over to the new crews and then started for home. There is only one member of the old crew on the Nymphe, the chief engineer, and two on the Daphne, the second lieutenant and the paymaster. The other officers and men left for England to-day. The Hyacinthe will be down from Vancouver to-morrow with her new crew.

There was one accident during the trip across the continent. When the men were mustered at Winnipeg it was found that a young bluejacket was missing. The train was side tracked and the engine sent back to look for the missing man. He was found lying across the track several miles east of Winnipeg. His shoulder blade was dislocated and his skull fractured. He was taken to the Winnipeg hospital where he now is.

THE WEST COAST.

Six Deaths From Smallpox at Hesquiot—A Bark's Narrow Escape.

The steamer Maude, Capt. Roberts, returned from the West Coast last evening. The trip was long, rough and unpleasant. She went up as far as Clayoquot and was delayed by fogs and a strong S. E. gale. On her way up she ran in close to Uculet to wait until the fog lifted. In the breakers close to the rocks was the bark C. F. Sergent, bound from San Francisco to Nanaimo. The Sergent had drifted in during the fog and was in a very dangerous position, although luckily the sea was perfectly calm The Maude towed the Sergent out to sea.

The Government steamer Quadra was at Alberni on her way up the coast when the Maude was coming down.

Mr. Gillett, the Indian agent, was a passenger from Hesquiot to Alberni. He told Captain Roberts that six Indians had died at Nootka Sound about a month ago from smallpox. The disease has, however, completely disappeared since that time.

The passengers to Victoria by the Maude were:—Rev. Father Heyman, Frank McQuillon, W. Walls, W. McDonald, J. C. Anderson and A. Wilson.

FOOTBALL.

VICTORIA VS. NAVY.

The Victoria association team travelled to Esquimalt yesterday afternoon and were rewarded by the pleasantest game of the season. Owing to the rain the ground was rather soft, but did not prevent the game being fast all through. The visitors' combination was superior to the navy, securing three goals to their opponents' one. The right wing of the navy put in some splendid runs, from one of which their goal was secured.

VICTORIA VS. WESTMINSTER.

The game of Rugby football between Victoria and New Westminster at Beacon Hill yesterday afternoon proved a hotly contested match with Victoria the winner. The play was hard from the start, and although there was considerable roughness no one was injured. Victoria made two goals in rapid succession in the first half and won with them against New Westminster's one. The Victoria's were strengthened by Arbuthnot and Nicholas from the navy and the combination play of these two, with Roberts, was the great feature of the day. Ward, Ackland, Haines and Brimstone all did good work. For the visitors the Messrs. Woods, Applegarth, Bowman and White did very well. The usual cheers followed the close of the game. More people witnessed the game than any other this season.

CRICKET.

The first annual dinner of the Albion Cricket Club will be held at the New York Hotel to-morrow evening, when a very enjoyable time is expected. ## AN UNENVIABLE REPUTATION.

John Jones, 16 Years of Age, arrested On a Charge of Burglary

Jno. Jones, a boy of 16, who has already made a record for himself in police circles, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Otter Point for stealing a gold watch from W. Beaumont's residence. Several days ago a young man named Bull was committed for trial on a charge of stealing this watch, but he was discharged when the case had been before the Speedy Trial's Court.

Since Bull's discharge the provincial police learned that young Jones had something to do with the robbery. Sergt. Langley and Policeman McNeill, therefore proceeded to Otter Point yesterday and after a long hunt arrested Jones, brought him to town and handed him over to the city police.

Jones, although still a boy, has got an unenviable reputation. He started out by getting three months at Nanaimo for robbing a house. After serving his time he came to Victoria and went to work for a district farmer. He robbed his employer one night, but nothing was done in the matter. He did the same to his second employer and then came to the city, where, it is alleged, he broke into Mr. Beaumont's house and stole a gold watch. He will be given a hearing to-morrow morning.

Death's Hand.

Leonard Buttress Trimen, architect, died at his residence, Erie street, James Bay, yesterday, after a long illness. The deceased had been suffering from cancer for several month, and during the last few days his death had been expected. He was a native of England, aged 46. Since his arrival in Victoria, several years ago, he has made many friends who will be grieved to hear of his demise. Among gentlemen of his profession he was thought a great deal of. He was the architect for several fine business blocks and residences in Victoria, also St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, No. 4 Erie street, and at 2:30 from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

MY SCHOOLDAYS.

I can not forget them, I can not forget,
Though for ages to come I am doomed to exist;
They're as bright and as fresh in my memory yet,
As the rose blushing red that the sun has just kissed.
It seems like a day past, it seems like a day,
Though really the days have passed on into years,
Since I was a school-boy—and shouts of the play,
The songs and the laughter still ring in my ears.
Oh, the days they were long then, the days they were long,
Like a beautiful song! Like a beautiful song!
The grass then was greener, the sky was more blue,
The birds they sang sweeter high up on the bough;
And I do not know why, yet indeed it is true,
I believe that the stars then were brighter than now,
And my dreams of the future, ah, how you would smile,
Did you know all the castles I built in the air;
No lamp of Aladdin could ever beguile
Into being such castles, so grand and so fair.
Oh, the future I planned then, the future I planned,
Indeed it was grand! Indeed it was grand!
And the forms of my schoolmates—the happy and lorn—
I see in their places around me once more;
Oh! could I but meet them again in the morn,
Oh! could I but greet them again as of yore.
They have taken their places as women and men,
In the battle of life they are not in the rear;
And one who was dearer than life to me then,
I shall never see here! I shall never see here!
My heart it was lighter, much lighter 'twas then
Than it's since ever been, than its since ever been!
Oh, the battles we fought then, the battles we we won
The problems we mastered, 'twas really sublime;
You could tell very easy how well we had done,
By the way we marched up to recite every time.
'Twas much that I knew then of Profit and Shares;
'Twas much that I knew then of Grammar and all,
But 'twas little I knew of life's labor and cares,
'Twas little I knew of life's trouble and toil.
And songs any sweeter never fell from the tongue,
Than the songs that we sung then, the songs that we sung.
And the master, whose voice was a sentence of death,
Or whose words were repeated and treasured for days,
To the culprit who trembled in front of his desk,
By the urchin whose efforts he greeted with praise,
I remember them all, and I think with a smile
Of the punishment cruel inflicted by one
Who seated me on the girl side of the aisle,
Where I tried to diminish when visitors came;
I have not forgot him, nor will I forget,
And I think if I met him I'd punish him yet.
Oh, that very same school-house now standson the hill,
And the very same bell gives a warning so sweet,
With the same raft of urchins surrounding it still,
With little bare feet! With little bare feet!
But they're not the same faces, they're not the same forms,
They're not the same voices that ring in my ears;
And I throw down my pen with a feeling forlorn,
Nearly blinded with tears! Nearly blinded with tears!
But perhaps I will meet them, God willing, sometime,
In a far better clime, in a far better clime.
—A. E. Van Velsan, in Good Housekeeping.

HER CORRESPONDENT.

She Makes Running Comments as She Reads.

[Jack's room, with Jack in it. He is tramping up and down, hands in pockets, jacket half off his shoulders, furiously smoking a perfectly empty pipe.]

Jack (savagely soliloquizing between puffs) —Glad I wrote it. Glad I sent it. Glad I've broken with her. Only sorry didn't do it sooner. Flirt. Thorough flirt. Went to see her. Found her going out. With man. Young man. Good-looking. Also stylish. She says she's extremely sorry. But unexpected arrival, and— I flare up. Interrupt. Wish her very good evening. Which means very bad one. Fling off. Lie awake all night. Morning, write letter ending engagement: Post it. Meant to go to Europe instantly. This noon. But thought I'd wait for answer. Wonder if letter's reached her yet? Hope it has. No; I don't. Hope it hasn't. Ethel! (Dashes down pipe, looks at watch.) 3:45, and she'll get it by the five o'clock delivery. Even now I've time to go up there and see her before it comes—time enough. But what do I want to do that for? Haven't I any strength of mind? (Tears off jacket.) Or firmness? (Puts on coat.) Or resolution? (Bathes face and hands, brushes hair.) Or determination? (Hurries into ulster and arctics.) Or a decent amount of self-respecting pride? (Snatches hat.) No; by Jove, I haven't! (Exit, running.)

[Ethel's parlor. Jack, slightly heated and tremendously agitated; to whom enter Ethel.]

Ethel (fondly smiling and not at all conscious)—Why, dear!

Jack (awkwardly)—Ah!—hem!—good afternoon, Miss—Ethel!

Ethel (instantly comprehending)—O Jack! what a foolish, good, blind, quick-tempered stupid you are! You're the most ridiculous being that ever was; and sometimes you try me almost to death, and sometimes you're too funny for any thing. This time you're funny! Ha, ha, ha, ha!

Jack (attempting dignity)—May I ask—

Ethel (laughing)—Oh, yes; you may ask—but whether I can get breath enough to answer is another matter—ha, ha, ha, ha!

Jack (with a sort of shame-faced haughtiness)—If you can do nothing but jeer at me, I'd better—(moves to go.)

Ethel (pulling him down into the chair)—Don't be silly, Jack. You know you don't mean to go—you're only pretending—and you wouldn't be able to, if you meant it—goose!

Jack (helplessly) — Yes; I know. Ethel, it's because I love—

Ethel (delighted at this victory)—Of course it is. That's what you intended to tell me at the very first, wasn't it? (Jack confused.) Well, now, you've told me; I'll tell you something. It was my uncle!

Jack—Eh?

Ethel — Yes; Uncle Joe, just from California. He's papa's younger brother, whom you've never seen—as was quite evident from your behavior—ha, ha, ha, ha! If you'd waited one second, you'd have learned all about it and—

Jack—O Ethel! what a donkey I am! (Seizes her.)

Ethel (unresisting)—Not quite that, but possibly some other kind of big, strong, unreasoning animal—from your actions, I should say a bear. Good old jealous Jack! (Peace breaks out with great violence.)

Servant (entering later)—Th' letters, Miss. (Exit Servant.)

Jack (suddenly recollecting)—Great Heavens!

Ethel (examining letters)—Only one for me. Why, Jack, what ails you? You're absolutely white! Are you ill? You're not? But why do you look so? (Glances at address on envelope). Ah!

Jack (apart)—I'd forgotten all about it!

Ethel (with very piquant air of being mistress of the situation)—Now, whom can this be from? The hand is a man's—very much like yours, Jack. The resemblance is quite strong.

Jack (apart)—What a horrible scrape!

Ethel (leisurely opening letter)—And the envelope's like yours, too—and the paper. (Reads.) "Miss Fay;" Must be from some shop-keeper on business. (Reads.) "When you read these lines I shall be outside of Sandy Hook—" Well, well! What do you think of that, Jack?

Jack (perspiring with agony)—I don't—I can't—

Ethel (thoughtfully)—Do you suppose this person is really where he said he should be when I read these lines?

Jack (wincing)—Merciful powers!

Ethel (resuming)—"—outside of Sandy Hook, never to see you again." At any rate, this isn't from a shopkeeper. (Reads.) "You have tired me out—" I don't know but that it may be, though—(Reads.) "—and I leave you forever—" (Jack groans.) You don't appear interested, and it is stuff, I acknowledge. (Jack groans again.) Let's go on, though, just for fun. (Reads.) "—forever, not to remorse—" dear me, I should hope not. (Reads.) "—which you are incapable of feeling—"

Jack (apart)—I wish I were dead!

Ethel (looking hard at him)—My correspondent seems rather severe, doesn't he, Jack? (Reads.) "—but I do leave you to one who is far my superior, no doubt—" No doubt, truly. Any sane person would be. (Renewed groans from Jack. Ethel continues.) "—in merit as he is in good fortune—" how very Johnsonian and prize-essayish my correspondent is, Jack! (Reads.) "—and who is, I trust, worthy of your love." Why, he means you, Jack! Now, are you really worthy of my love?

Jack (desperate)—O Ethel! Stop! I—

Ethel (putting her hand on his mouth) —Quiet, Jack! I've not finished reading my letter! (Reads.) "—He can not love you more than I —" can't you, Jack?—(reads) "loved you once" — ah, past tense—(reads) "nor less than I love you now—"

Jack (wildly)—Ethel! Please don't!

Ethel (quietly)—My correspondent is just a little wee grain brutal, isn't he, Jack? (Reads.) "—but you will not care.—" What is your opinion about that, Jack? (Reads.) "Farewell, cruel girl—" do hear my correspondent spout, Jack! "and never think more of—"

Jack (trying to snatch the letter)—I must have it!

Ethel (holding him off and reading)—"Yours —"

Jack—Don't read—oh, don't read the sig—

Ethel—"—most —"

Jack—Don't, oh, don't!

Ethel—"—sincerely"—(tears up letter and throws in grate)—I can't imagine whomy correspondent may be—can you—Jack?

Jack (in grateful adoration) — You darling girl! (Second and this time lasting reconciliation. Only, some minutes after —)

Ethel (dreamily) — I'm afraid I'm sorry I destroyed that letter!—Manley H. Pike, in Puck.

Ill-Assorted Guests.

Big dinner parties of ill-assorted guests are failures from a conversationalist point of view. A fireside, or a table, round if possible, and, say, four or half a dozen guests, are sufficient. More will break up into separate knots and fewer mean a tete-a-tete. "I had," says Thoreau, "at Walden three chairs in my house—one for solitude, two for friendship, three for society." The hermit Thoreau in his hut at Walden was wiser than the man who looks for society in a crush. An unhappy husband, living in Portland Place, whose wife inflicted huge parties upon him, was standing in a very forlorn condition leaning against the chimney piece. A gentleman came up to him and said: "Sir, as neither of us are acquainted with any of the people here I think we had best go home." Social crowds must not expect the great men among them to talk well. She must have been a most unreasonable person who was disappointed with Napoleon because when a lot of ladies were presented to him he only remarked to each of them how hot it was.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Power of Will.

The influence of a powerful will in arresting or retarding the progress of a disease apparently fatal is one of the most wonderful of all mental phenomena. A person of feeble frame, but of a determined and hopeful spirit, sometimes keeps death at bay for weeks, months, even years, and finally, in defiance of the physicians who have sat in judgment on his case and pronounced it utterly hopeless, recovers and returns to his customary vocations. On the other hand a man of strong physique not unfrequently wilts and dies under a comparatively controllable ailment simply from a lack of the mental energy which enables the strong-willed weakling to repel the destroyer.—N. Y. Ledger.

WENT AWAY DISAPPOINTED.

The Deputation of Unemployed Get no Satisfaction by Attending Council.

Startling Smallpox Information—Many Applications for Street Work.

The meeting of the city council on Wednesday evening was attended by about 300 unemployed men. Their presence was never brought to the attention of the mayor in any way and at adjournment they had all left the chamber. A couple of the councilmen made speeches apparently directed entirely to "the gallery," and were freely applauded. The only special feature of the meeting was the large amount of street improvement petitioned for. Few requests can be granted as there are no funds for the work.

WATER RENT ARREARS.

E. A. Wilmot, water commissioner, submitted a list of those in arrears for water rents with the recommendation that in cases where collection could not be made with a little pressure, action to collect the accounts be taken under the water rate by-law. The list, which included the names of some rather prominent people, was read. It totalled $1786.

Ald. Humber wanted to know if there was not a way to collect the money. The water should be cut off. There are people in the list fully able to pay.

Ald. Lovell moved a reference to the water commissioner and water committee with the understanding that the council would back them up in enforcing the by-law. It was so voted.

CARELESS VACCINATING.

The following letter from Dr. G. L. Milne was then read:

VICTORIA, Nov. 7th, 1892.

To His Worship the Mayor and Aldermen:

GENTLEMEN:—I have to complain of the evident careless manner in which the smallpox and suspect cases are treated by the provincial authorities. Recently near Duncan's, in Cowichan district, a man by the name of Shopland was taken ill and died of smallpox. A brother of this man and his wife were in attendance on him for a week after he took ill. When it was found to be a case of smallpox the husband, wife and four children were quarantined for a period of 14 days. The 14th day being last Saturday. Mrs. Shopland not feeling well at once took train for Victoria and left her family behind. She remarked: "If I am going to be sick with smallpox I do not want to be sick at my own home."

When she arrived here on Saturday evening the woman had the good sense to report herself to me, and on hearing the circumstances of the case, and she (Mrs. S.) not feeling well. I immediately sent her to the Ross Bay suspect station. She had not been successfully vaccinated since childhood, no precautions had been taken in the way of fumigation or disinfection, although the family had been exposed. Therefore I considered her unfit to travel, without the proper precautions having been taken, usual in such cases.

I shall detain her a few days to see how the case turns out. She has been re-vaccinated by me and other sanitary details attended to. In the meantime the Shopland family are running at large in Cowichan district without the proper precautions having been taken, likely contaminating the whole neighborhood. You will see by this that owing to the carelessness of the provincial health officer and his deputies, Victoria is the dumping ground for such cases and it will be a long time before such a disease will be stamped out if such matters are not put into proper hands.

What I have to complain of in this case as you will see that Mrs. Shopland was allowed to travel on the railway train and other carriages, especially as she came from quarantine and not feeling well.

Secondly, it was utterly unsafe as no means had been taken for the disinfection of the person or the fumigation of the house or clothing.

Thirdly, the condition of the Shopland family being allowed to be at large without the proper precautions having been taken.

Dr. Dickson was health officer for Cowichan but sent in his resignation some time ago, owing to a quarrel with Dr. Davie, but this is no reason why the public health should suffer.

I do not know if the city corporation has made any arrangements with the Provincial authorities for the care of suspects coming from the outlying districts. However, I have taken charge of Mrs. Shopland and am having her properly cared for at the expense of the city at Ross Bay station.

I have the honor to be,
Your Obedient Servant.
G. L. MILNE
Health Officer.

Ald. Humber said he heard James Shopland was sick, alone and died alone. Even his hay, reaper and barn had been burned with his house. He said he did not know that the woman had nursed the man, but if such was the case the usual precautions should have been taken. He said that Victoria would have smallpox as long as she was made the dumping ground of the surrounding country.

The letter was referred to the provincial health officer.

W. F. Bullen, manager of the Albian Iron Works, asking for the return of the amount of a certified check given as security when the company was given a pipe contract. The contract has not yet been fulfilled. The matter was referred to the water committee.

There was some little discussion over the question of fixing up Rockland avenue. It was first proposed to have the street improved under the local improvement by-law.

Aldermen Munn and Brag favored a delay to get some of the work now under way completed. The latter said he wanted a delay in order that proposed amendments to the by-law might be made.

Ald. Hunter explained that the changes were merely technical.

After some discussion it was decided to refer the matter to the chairman of the street committee to give notice of motion of a by-law for repairing the street under the local improvement by-law.

J. Merrifield, of the Telegraph Hotel, applied for permission to connect with the sewer.

Ald. McKillican explained the sewerage matter was still unsettled and nothing could be done. He urged haste in reaching a decision. The matter was laid over.

Del Cary Smith, city attorney of Port Townsend, wrote asking for some information about the water charges of the city. The letter will be properly replied to.

City Engineer Wilmot and City Assessor Northcott presented a report showing the cost of improving Queens avenue and making the assessment. The cost per front foot was placed at $11 and the total at $9047.50.

Ald. Baker moved that the matter be referred back, as in the first place the improvement district was too confined, and again there was objection to having the street macadamized, as no instructions to have that included was given.

Ald. Munn seconded the motion.

Ald. McKilligan wanted it to be received and filed, as all the property directly benefitted had been and could only be assessed.

Ald. Baker's motion was withdrawn and the report was received and adopted.

The finance committee presented a lengthy report announcing the payment of a number of claims and recommending others. It was favorably acted upon.

Ald. McKillican was granted leave to introduce a by-law to provide for the extension of View street easterly for several blocks.

THE POWDER MAGAZINE.

Ald. Munn, seconded by Ald. Bragg, introduced a resolution to the effect that the Government be reminded of its promise to remove the powder magazine in Beacon Hill park. He said the powder house was a menace to public safety. He said that at one time last year 11,000 pounds of powder were stored in the place. The motion was carried.

A BATCH OF BY-LAWS.

Ald. Hunter was granted leave to introduce an amendment to the Local Improvement by-law of 1892; to introduce a by-law for the registration of plumbers; an amendment to the Consolidated Health by-law, and a by-law to deal with the expenditure of revenue for the year 1892.

BROAD STREET EXTENSION.

The council went into committee of the whole for the consideration of the by-law for the extension of Broad street from Pandora to Cormorant streets. After a few trivial amendments a long discussion on the period of redemption took place. It was finally agreed to increase it from five to 10 years. The committee rose and reported progress.

A number of communications in regard to street work were received. The street committee will look the matters up.

A PLAIN TALE.

TO THE EDITOR:—"A Young Mother's" letter went straight to my heart, and I am so glad her little one is no worse for its vaccination. My own little ones have not been vaccinated for a good reason, which I will tell you about as shortly as I can. When I was born my father, like most men, believed in it because the family doctor said it was necessary, and when I was about three months old I was vaccinated. Something went wrong, and for a few years my life was almost despaired of, but at last I began to grow out of it and gradually got well, but the greater part of my childhood was spoiled completely, and I have never been so strong as I ought. There was no doubt my illness was caused by vaccination, as the family doctor admitted it, and keenly regretted the part he unwittingly took in it.

My father's faith was badly shaken by this; still he looked upon it as a misfortune which ought to be risked, because of the great general good; but his faith was utterly destroyed some years afterwards, when a very near relative, four months after being successfully vaccinated, took confluent smallpox and died. He looked into the subject, found numberless cases of the same nature, and ever since has been a bitter foe to vaccination.

ARGUMENT ALL ON ONE SIDE.

TO THE EDITOR:—As a constant reader of your valuable paper, and an unbiassed observer, I have been struck by the many reasons that can be urged against vaccination. The reports of the Royal Commission, and an occasional half hour spent in the court house, listening to the evidence, have only gone to confirm my impression that whatever its benefits may be, its dangers are neither few nor to be lightly risked, and that it should on no account be forced on any one. Another thing strikes me. While your correspondents are very prolific and very specific in their allegations, not a word has been heard from the other side. This seems strange, and it looks to me as if the other side were indulging a little too much in that discretion which is said to be the better part of valor. Dr. Davie says nothing, but he is not at all inactive, and having for the present the whip hand, his influence can easily be traced in various quarters.

Take last session of the school trustees. A letter is read referring to "the Smith family" and "our conversation of this morning." The Smith family (surely I have heard that name before) and our conversation of this morning! Some deep, dark meaning evidently lurks in these words. They seem strangely like phrases I have heard before. Stay, I have it; something about "chops and tomato sauce" and "don't forget the warming pan." Dear old Pickwick, who would have expected to find you in Victoria, B. C.

It appears that "it is absolutely necessary that every child attending the public schools should be protected by vaccination." Protected from what? From the fury of parents and guardians thirsting to have their children take smallpox? Why, if Dr. Davie or anybody else could show these people that vaccination was a preventive of smallpox, and was innocent in itself, they would simply rush to have their children "protected." Compulsion seems out of place when the end sought is beneficent.

Does Dr. Davie give any valid reasons for his action. No, not one; his letter simply amounts to "Shut your eyes and bare your arm and see what I will put in it."

By the way, what was the mortality among school children during the late epidemic, when so many of the poor things were exposed to the dire disease, without being "protected" by vaccination? There seems to me to be about as many of the little cherubs around the streets as ever, but I may be wrong.

An English View.

The following is from a Portsmouth, Eng., paper:—The Russians have joined the Yankees in worrying the Canadian sealers in and about the Behring Seas. I wonder they have not done it before. The game is not in the least dangerous, and it is very profitable, a conjunction of conditions which is quite a palatable to the honey-loving but tender nosed Muscovite Bear as to the braggart but thin-skinned Yank. The latter have now seized three Canadian schooners, all without cause, as has been proved by the liberation of the schooners on appeal, but not without advantage to the captors, as they in each case seized, and never gave back, the sea skins found on board the plundered ships. The Russians, however, go further, for not content with robbing the Canadians, they sold their schooners, and after threatening them with Siberia and actually maltreating them, left them to be picked up by a casually-passing English ship. Mr. Gladstone should not let this opportunity slip of paying a compliment to the Czar, and thanking him for strengthening the union of hearts between Muscovy and Great Britain.
